INDIAN MILITARY SERVICE FAMILY PENSION REGULATIONS.

No. 874-F.—In accordance with the terms of G.O. No. 1245, dated the 26th December 1912, as republished in G.O. No. 260, dated the 27th May 1913, the Governor-General in Council directs the publication of the following documents regarding the conditions of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Fund as on the 31st March 1915:—

India Office, London,
27th May 1915.

No. 2. Financial (Ponds).

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

My Lord,

You will have learned from my predecessor's Despatch of the 24th March last, Finance (Ponds)

Indian Military Service Family Pension. Despatch Ponds
as on 31st March
1915.

No. 1, that in consequence of the death of Sir G. E. Hardy, K.C.B., the completion of the valuation of the Indian Military Service Family Pension as at 31st March 1914 had been entrusted to His J. Douglas Watson, C.M.A., General Manager and Secretary of the Fire Assurance Society, and that instructions had been given that his calculations should be based on the experience of mortality, Marriage, Remarriage, death, etc., accumulated up to the 31st March 1914. The Despatch also informed me that the Secretary of State had decided that the question of making any alteration in the rules of contribution, on account of the results shown in the valuation would be postponed until the completion of the War is such that the effect of War casualties on the assets and liabilities might be known before a settlement is reached.

2. Mr. Watson's Report has now been received, and is enclosed together with the Consolidated Accounts for the six years ended on the 31st March 1914.

3. The valuation shows that the surplus on the whole scheme is £39,894, and that the separate immediate liabilities of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers and the Marine Division and of the Insurance Branch show a surplus on each. The valuator has well made with satisfaction that the surplus allows of a contribution for the present of the proper cost, reduction of the full tabular rates of contributions is, and this temporary reduction will accordingly be continued until the date of publication of the next valuation. To meet this, £98,534 of the surplus must be regarded as reserved. The question of the application of the remainder of the surplus will be postponed as already stated.

4. I have carefully considered the reasons given by the Actuary for his view that a continuance of separate valuations of the Royal Artillery and Engineers and of the Royal Indian Marine Division is unnecessary, and in view of the comparatively small number of members included in those divisions and of the fact that there will be an influx of new subscribers, I agree with his suggestions and have decided that separate valuations of these two divisions shall be discontinued.

5. I have noted Mr. Watson's recommendation that the next valuation should not be unduly delayed, and when the present War is brought to a conclusion and its effect on the scheme can be fully ascertained, a date for the next investigation will be fixed.

6. I have to request that this despatch and the Actuary's Report may be published in the "Gazette of India," and that the date of publication may be notified to me.

I have the honor to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble servant,

ARTHUR CHAMBERLAIN.

ENCLOSURE No. 1.

INDIAN MILITARY SERVICE FAMILY PENSION.

ANNUAL REPORT ON VALUATION OF ASSETS AND LIABILITIES at 31st March 1914 by J. Douglas Watson, Fellow of the Institute of Actuaries; Fellow of the Actuarial Society of America; General Manager and Actuary of the Star Assurance Society; Consulting Actuary of the Barbados Mutual Life Assurance Society; Consulting Actuary of the Dominion Mutual Life Assurance Society, Limited.

35, MARK LANE, LONDON, E.C.

12th April 1915.

MY LORD CHAMBERLAIN,

In accordance with instructions conveyed to me by Sir Lionel Aldrich in his letters of the 18th November 1914 and 16th March last, I have investigated the financial position of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Scheme as at 31st March 1914.

1. The purpose of the Scheme is to provide pensions for the widows and orphans of officers, such pensions to be provided for by payments made by the officers during their lifetime, and it is obvious that in order to ascertain whether the scheme is in a satisfactory financial position at any given moment it is necessary to make an estimate of (a) the present value of all the pensions which may be payable in the future to the widows and orphans of the members and (b) the present value of all the future payments which the members have contracted to pay.

2. As regards the present value of the pensions, this will depend upon the ages at which the officers die; the number who are married or may marry, the ages of their wives, the mortality of the wives, the number of children who are born and the ages at which they die and the percentages of daughters who marry.

3. As regards the present value of the future contributions of members, this will depend upon the age and rank at which the officers join, the age at which they are promoted and marry and the age at which they retire or for other reasons pay half subscriptions and the age at which they die.

4. When a Pension Scheme such as this is started, estimates (based so far as possible on past experience in connection with similar schemes) have to be made as to the various methods mentioned in paragraphs 2 and 3, and it is then possible, having decided what pension is to be paid, to calculate the corresponding payments which must be made by the members for its maintenance, additional assumptions usually being as to the rate of interest at which the subscriptions will be value of the future pensions will be nearly equal to (b) the present value of the members' contributions.

5. As time goes on, however, this equality no longer holds, as will be at once apparent if for the sake of simplicity the case is considered of such a Pension Scheme as would be started by, say, 1,000 married members all joining at, say, age 35. All the members will necessarily pay the same subscription, say, of one, at once, but probably for some years only a very few members will be leaving pension is again considered, it will be seen that (a) all the surviving members are ten years older, so that the value of their future subscriptions is very much less than it was when the scheme started, they pay as the other band (b) all the wives are correspondingly older, so that the time when continuous life expectancy is increased. After ten years, therefore, the present value of these future pensions will be more than the present value of the future payments by members, and unless in the meantime the subscriptions of members not required to pay current pensions (if any) have been made made when starting the Scheme as in future death, marriage, and birth rates, etc., have proved exactly right.

7. This same reasoning applies to the Indian Military Service Family Pension Scheme where any member were in year by year and explain why for many years to such a Pension Scheme the income must exceed the outlay and the difference be accumulated if the Scheme is to remain solvent.

8. Moreover, although for some years after such a scheme is started, it is not possible more than roughly to ascertain whether it is actually working out as was assumed when the rules were framed, after a time, if the maintaining is large enough, it is possible by means of statistics as to the future based upon the actual experience of the fund in the past to make reliable calculations and estimate how, after making due allowance for the accumulation of past surpluses, the value of the future subscription payable compares with the value of the present provided.

9. From these general considerations it will be evident that such an investigation (usually called a valuation) can only be of use if the Scheme is of some "prize" standing and the number of members fairly large. The Indian Military Service Family Pension Scheme was started on 1st January 1910, and the following Table shows the growth in the number of subscribers and beneficiaries and in the "Balance at Credit of Scheme" (i.e., the accumulation of suspended past subscriptions).

TABLE I.

Date.	Subscribers.			Values.		Expenses.						Balance at credit of scheme.

From this table it will be seen that the number of subscribers has increased fairly steadily to slightly over 2,000. As the scheme is now (since 31st December 1914) closed to new members, the number of subscribers will gradually diminish. It will be noticed also that the proportion of married members has increased, and for some time it may be expected that the number of married subscribers will increase although the total number of subscribers will decrease.

As the number of subscriber members decrease by death so the number of subscriber widows will increase for a considerable time will eventually a then will come when the average number of widows who become entitled to pension each year will be less than the number of widows who cease to draw pensions owing to death or remarriage, with the result that the number of subscriber widows will gradually tend to decrease. Similarly the number of orphan children on the fund will continue to increase for some considerable time.

The "Balance at Credit of Scheme" represents the accumulation of the payments by members, less payments for pensions and expenses, accumulated at interest. The difficulty for keeping such a balance in hand has already been explained, and for a time the "Balance at Credit of Scheme" will continue to increase. Eventually as the number of subscribers decreases and the number of pensions payable increases, the income from current subscriptions will be insufficient to pay the average pensions, and thereafter the payments will be partly payable out of the "Balance at Credit of Scheme" which will gradually diminish and finally disappear when the last pensioner dies. It is interesting to notice that this may not happen for many years. For instance, if a member at present aged 25 were to marry at 26 and then 2 years a daughter be born to her, she might be well over a hundred years from now before her pension ceased.

10. Having regard to the age and membership of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Scheme, family statistics as to the future mortality is of great importance, and which have prevailed among the subscribers to the Fund and among the actual and prospective pensioners in the past and as explained in the report made by the late Sir George F. Hardy in connection with the valuation of the Fund as at 31st March 1913, he based the valuations then made upon tables of mortality, etc., specially prepared by him from the actual, most reliable of the statistics between 31st March 1908 and 31st March 1909 with the assistance where necessary (as in the case of advanced ages where the data relating to these was insufficient) of mortality tables, etc., derived from other analogous data.

11. In connection with the present valuation I have been furnished by the Director of Funds with full data covering the period from 31st March 1908 to 31st March 1914, and from this data, in conjunction with the data used by Sir George Hardy, fresh tables have been prepared upon which the present valuation has been based. The method of valuing annuities employed here has been similar to those adopted by Sir George Hardy in connection with the 1905 valuation fully described by him in his report. Moreover the rates of mortality, marriage, and birth obtained by the same source data do not differ from those used by him in such a way as to render it necessary to stipulate in this report the numerous tables included in his report. The following brief observations supplementing his report may however be made—

(a) Mortality experience of subscribers.—The progressive improvement in the mortality of the subscribers since Sir George Hardy's report has materialized during the six years ending March 1914, especially at the younger ages. This is probably due partly to the general improvement in the health conditions of Europeans in tropical climates, and partly to the fact that during this period there were no more serious disease amongst Indian officers.

(1) Mortality experience of wives and widows.—The mortality amongst the wives and widows shows no change.

(2) Mortality experience of sons and daughters.—The mortality amongst the sons and daughters has again been extremely light. Owing to the fact that the fund was only established in 1912 very few of the subscribers' daughters entered age 45, and it has again been necessary to have recourse to the date of the Indian Military Fund to estimate the mortality to be expected amongst the daughters at the older ages.

(3) Marriage of subscribers.—There has been an appreciable change in the marriage rate amongst officers, but there seems to be a slight tendency for subscribers to marry relatively older wives.

(4) Re-marriage of widows.—There have been only 22 re-marriages during the period 1906-1914, and, although the dependants show a somewhat increased rate of re-marriage, the numbers are so small that this may well be a temporary fluctuation.

(5) Marriage of daughters.—The marriage rate amongst daughters has slightly increased especially at the ages under 25. In order to provide against a possible lowering of the rate in the future a relaxation of about 50 per cent. has again been allowed for in the last valuation.

(6) Rate of birth.—The birth rates of both sons and daughters have somewhat decreased, and in estimating the liabilities this may be expected to show in the future in respect of younger children born to existing subscribers the assumed birth rates have been increased by 10 per cent. to allow for future fluctuations.

(7) Promotions and retirements.—In the annual subscription of members very according to their rank and length of service, and no donations are payable on promotion and on marriage, it is necessary to make an estimate of the probable amount of annual subscriptions or single payments which on the average the members will be paying as they grow older. For this purpose the calculations have been based upon the average ages of members on promotion to each class in the past, and the proportion of members married and single and retired. Allowance has also been made for the reduction of contributions in the case of officers on leave or retired or who for any other reason only pay half rates.

(8) Liabilities in respect of future wives and children.—The contingent liabilities which will arise in the event of officers and single marriages, or of widows re-marrying, have again been estimated on the assumption that the age of the husband exceeds that of the wife by more than 12 years; the extra liability thrown on the scheme will be covered by the "disparity donations" in addition to the "marriage" and "success age" donations, payable under regulation 12.

12. In making the valuation it has according to instructions been assumed that in the future the scheme will be credited with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum upon the balance of the accumulated difference between the income and expenditures for the time being so long as any of the existing members remain in force. Moreover future expenses of management have been allowed for upon the same basis as at present, viz., at the rate of 10 per cent. upon the contributions received and 1 per cent. upon the benefits paid.

13. Special attention should also be drawn to the fact that in accordance with instructions an allowance has been made in the valuation for the financial effect upon the present scheme of the present War. This will undoubtedly affect the position of the fund owing to the very large additional mortality amongst the members and will probably affect the scheme in other directions by altering the future marriage rates, ages at promotion and retirement and so on.

14. Result of the valuation.—The valuation balance sheet appended to this report (Appendix A) shows in detail the results of the valuation of the scheme upon the assumptions mentioned above and showing that the full rates of contributions and donations as set out in regulation 12 are payable in future. It will be seen that there was on 31st March 1914 a surplus according to the present valuation of £25,333M.

15. This surplus will be sufficient to permit of the continuation for the present of the reduction of 50 per cent. in the future contributions and donations and leave a substantial surplus to provide against possible future contingencies. It is therefore suggested that notwithstanding the possible adverse effect upon the scheme of the War (the financial effect of which must, at present be assumed) the present reduction in subscriptions and donations should be continued until the publication of the next actuarial investigation, which investigation should not, however, be unduly postponed.

16. Report of the Actuary and Audit Expenses.—In accordance with instructions a complete valuation of the assets and liabilities with respect to the pensions in the Royal Army and Royal Engineers' Branch of the service has been made. The following table shows the number of subscribers and beneficiaries and the balance of fund as at the dates shown:-

Table II.

Date	Subscribers,			Widows,		Orphans,						Balance of Fund.
	Married	Single	Total	Pensioners.	Orphans.	Bene.		Daughters		Total.
						Pensioners.	Orphans.	Pensioners.	Orphans.	Pensioners.	Orphans.
1st April 1902	12	16	28	7	11	3	11	10	49	11	100	£ 10,875
" 1914 "	61	18	79	4	14	"	25	12	51	18	61	79,004

17. It will be seen that the number of members is very small and is not sufficient to form a basis for calculating special tables of mortality, etc., based upon the past experience of those particular members. Consequently the only provision made is to use the tables included in the general valuation (in which these contracts have already been included) for the small section, and in this basis the results of the valuation are set out in detail in the Valuation Balance Sheet appended to this report (Appendix B).

18. Royal Indian Marine.—A corresponding separate valuation of the policies in respect of the Royal Indian Marine Branch of the service has been made. Here again, the members involved are very small as shown in the following table:—

TABLE III.

Date.		Subscribers			Values.		Deaths						Balance of Fund.
		Marine.	Single.	Total.	Transport.	Coastguard.	Boats.		Daughters.		Total.
							Transport.	Coastguard.	Transport.	Coastguard.
31st April 1898	21	30	548	513	7	37	4	48	3	43	9	154	£ 46,884
" 1914	"	323	186	334	12	128	8	33	18	63	39	112	81,547

19. For the reasons explained in paragraph 17 the valuation has been based upon exactly the same tables as were used in the general valuation (in which these contracts have already been included) and the results are set out in detail in the Valuation Balance Sheet appended to this report (Appendix C).

20. Having regard to the small number of cases involved in the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers and the Royal Indian Marine sections, these do not, as stated above, provide a sufficient basis upon which to make any satisfactory actuarial investigation and as these sections will not any longer be recruited by the entry of new members but that the membership will never now get large enough to furnish adequately separate statistics I would recommend that the separate statistics which have hitherto been kept in these sections and the separate valuations be discontinued as they do not appear to serve any useful purpose.

21. Insurance Branch.—The total number of insurances in force at the date of the valuation 31st April 1914 was 148 (increased to 22, Rs. 4,58,105). The valuation of the Insurances has been made on the same basis as in the last account (i.e., 50 per cent mortality table with interest assumed 2½ per cent per annum) and the result is shown in the valuation balance sheet appended to this report (Appendix D).

22. It will be seen that there is a surplus of Rs. 47,185. It may, however, be borne in mind that an special provision has been made for the extra sums which will be payable out of the Insurance branch owing to the War.

I have the honor to be,

My Lord, Sir,

Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

J. DEVEREAUX WATSON.

A. BUTTERWORTH,
Chief Surveyor.

1. Officers of the Imperial Service are recruited under agreement with the Secretary of State and serve their training in England and on the Continent. After the abolition of the Forest and Game Bill Ordinance in 1905, probationers were raised at Calcutta, but in 1911 it was decided that training might be undergone at any British University possessing a Forest scheme approved by the Secretary of State, and probationers may now be trained at Oxford, Cambridge and Edinburgh. Instruction at these centres is supplemented by a course of practical training in selected forests on the Continent under the approval of a Director of Indian Forest Studies.

Up to the year 1908 sub-steps of the Provincial Service were recruited by the promotion of men who had served for a period of years as Rangers. In 1908, with the object of giving the students of the Forestry Service, a system of direct appointment was introduced and the students chosen, either 24 years already in service or young men of good education and social standing, were required to undergo a third year of training at Delhi. This in addition to the ordinary course of two years. On the completion of this course and at three years' approved service either as Ranger or as Forestry Extra Assistant Conservator, the candidate became eligible for permanent promotion to the Provincial Service. This system, which was at first a temporary measure, proved satisfactory, and in 1912 a separate two years' course for Provincial Service candidates was provided. There can be no doubt that this is a great improvement on the old method of recruitment, but the candidates selected for training have not always been of the standard required, and the Government of India desire to improve the Local Government and Administration in the experience of forest officers. The lectures, which are given in the new Forest Research Institute buildings at Dehra Dun, are very interesting by an extensive course of practical training in various parts of India. The arrangements for controlling and keeping the students are undeniably well devised but an outside advisory the Research Institute has now been required and suitable questions are being framed.

Kings in Darwa and Madras Rangas are trained at the Forest College, Dehra-Dun, but for some years past the details of practical training have been finished on a camp to the use of the forests, extensive attention is still given to individual students. The investigation in 1905 of an English course at the Darwa Forest School and the opening of the Madras Forest College at Coimbatore in 1912 have had little effect in reducing the demand, with addition to the staff, demands from other provinces have increased. At the present state of affairs it is satisfactory and as it is desirable that at Dehra Dun attention should be concentrated on the training of candidates for the Imperial Service, it has been decided to discontinue the training of Rangas. Arrangements are being made to give effect to this decision and work with Local Government and Administrations and it is probable that within the next two years provincial schools will be started throughout India.

The training of subordinates below the rank of Ranger is carried out locally in forest schools and training classes.

5. During the quinquennial the increasing activities of the Department have rendered necessary considerable additions to the staff. The sanctioned strength of the Imperial Service increased from 200 to 219, and the actual strength from 188 to 217. In the case of the Provincial Service the sanctioned strength (excluding probationers) increased from 191 to 215 and the number employed from 194 to 197. In addition, 12 Forestry Extra Assistant Conservators were employed of the date of the quinquennial.

The appointment of Chief Conservator of Forests, Coimbatore, and a fourth Conservator for Madras was permanently added to the cadre in 1911, while the reorganisation of the cadre in the United Provinces and a third Conservator for Bombay have been sanctioned since the 30th June 1912. Following the temporary changes made in 1910, the three Forest circles of Bengal and Assam, Bengal and Assam were dissolved and the three new provinces and a fourth Circle made was sanctioned for Assam. Considerable additions were made to the subordinate and clerical staffs in several provinces.

6. Fire-protection measures consist chiefly in maintaining cleared fire lines, external and internal, in keeping an efficient system of patrol, in visiting these portions of the forest, in extinguishing any fires which may arise and in burning inflammable grass lands early in the season.

During recent years the method of study burning has been extended experimentally to some Hindoo forest areas which are more than usually inflammable, and whose regeneration operations are just a progress and to some other parts of forest in which the stock is not of sufficient value to justify the cost of complete protection.

Now that fire-protection measures have been carried out over considerable areas for several decades it is possible to come to some conclusions regarding their effect. In the majority of cases the forests have greatly benefited and there can be little doubt that in many types of forest the improvement that has occurred in the growing stock has been due entirely to the effects of fire protection. At the same time, it must be admitted that in certain cases fire protection, so far as the natural regeneration of the forests is concerned, has been decidedly harmful as the management given to increase species and variety has often partially prevented the natural seedlings of the principal species. This result has been observed for some time past in the case of a number of types of teak forest in Darwa, and it is now generally recognised that in forest of the above fire-protection should be abandoned. Thus, during the last year of the quinquennial the area under fire-protection in Darwa has been reduced from 7,711 square miles to 6,510 square miles. It is desired, however, whether or not forests of this size adequate reproduction can be secured mainly by abandoning fire-protection and concentrating regeneration measures will probably also be required.

Another important example of the adverse effects of fire-protection on regeneration has recently come to light in the all forests of the Central and Assam Divisions where extensive protection has restricted the undergrowth, which previously consisted largely of dense grass, into a dense mass of scrubby shrubs. Immense seedlings and saplings of the seed-bearing trees and shrubs are being killed and the undergrowth has to be cut with flint or an axe, and it is possible that the seed-bearing and shrubby reproduction with the aid of flint may prove to be the only satisfactory method of ensuring the persistence of the all in their very valuable forests.

Among injuries from natural causes, local damage from storms, frost, snow and other agencies are of some or less regular occurrence, though on some of special severity have been reported. During the past few years. The abnormal drought caused by the partial failure of the monsoons in 1907 and 1908 had serious results and in the aftermath of Ouda several lakhs of trees died. Investigations have shown that the death of these trees was due primarily to the lowering of the subsoil water-level following deficient rainfall, the mortality being most severe where there was a thick stratum of non-permeable soil in the subsoil.

1. No light has yet been thrown on the cause of the mysterious spike disease which attacks the coastal trees, though this question is still under investigation. In Coorg alone, nearly 22,000 affected trees were reported during the past five years, and although the intensity of the disease has not been uniform, it has not spread to areas previously unaffected. Among dangerous fungal pests in Malabar forests may be mentioned Peridermium tree, which attacks the thin pine (Pinus roxburghii), causing extensive damage, particularly where logging is practised, and Peridermium Colera, a deadly wood-boring fungus believed to be of little importance, but now known to be the cause of considerable damage in coastal plantations in Kola. Recently a violent fungus, not yet identified, has been found on the roots of the Albizia and Amorpha trees, and it seems probable that this fungus is largely responsible for the recent mortality which has been noticed in some years past among the Albizia trees of the forest. Steps are now being taken to investigate its life history and to devise, if possible, remedial measures.

Among the various weeds at present occupying the attention of the Forest Department, the most important are Parthenium, a shrub which was introduced from tropical America in the early part of last century and which spread so rapidly that for many years past it has created extensive tracts in Southern India to the exclusion of nearly all other forms of vegetation. Extensive measures for the eradication of this weed have been commenced in Coorg, where during the past few years 6,000 acres have been cleared and 3,241 acres cleared of Parthenium, at a cost of Rs. 10,164. A scheme for the systematic eradication of Parthenium has also been prepared, and the plant has been the subject of special legislation in the shape of the Coorg Parthenium Weeds Regulation of 1910.

Forest pests continue to be studied by the Forest Zoologist, but no measures of control have yet been put into force, although these may possibly become necessary when more intensive agricultural operations are undertaken.

2. Forestry in India is closely associated with grazing, the intensity of which varies in different provinces, and as measures aiming at harmfulness to the question is subordinate to the aim of securing the cause of friction between the Forest Department and the people. In the Central Provinces and Berar, the forest policy has been adapted to guarding forest resources in the case of which kept for agricultural purposes, higher fees being levied in other cases. In Malabar, the grazing question became so acute that a special Forest Commission was appointed in 1910 to consider the report on the local and national forests. The Commission recommended that forests in which agriculture and grazing are essential should be classified separately from those in which agriculture is not essential, and that the latter should be placed under the control of village panchayats or local authorities. Effect is now being given to this recommendation and it is hoped that the measures adopted will result in satisfactory results. In Malabar, the Government of India desire to extend to the candidates of the Government of these provinces where the destructive form of grazing is permitted.

3. The afforestation of denuded hill sides and river banks has received some attention during the past few years, particularly in the Punjab and the United Provinces.

The Government of the United Provinces in 1910 announced a definite policy of afforestation which provided for the reclamation of river banks and the formation of fuel and fodder reserves in districts of the plain, and to give effect to this policy an Afforestation Division has been constituted. A systematic survey of waste land has been started in the Districts, Jaipur, Jodhpur and Bikaner districts, and the work of reclamation and afforestation has already been taken in hand. These measures, which affect so closely the well-being of the agricultural population, may have far-reaching results and their progress will be watched with interest.

10. Plantation work continues to progress in many provinces. In the Andaman mangrove plantations for the supply of fuel and over 200 acres, while in the rubber plantations new aggregate 1914 acres. Some 100 acres planted in 1914 were tapped in 1915-16 and a sample of 100 lb of rubber was sent to London for sale where it realized Rs. 1-8-6 per lb. Planting schemes on a large scale for the supply of fuel to the Government were over 1,500 acres, while work plantations, though of small extent, is a considerable amount.

In Assam rubber plantations have now been established for many years and are still being extended but among that the selling price of Para rubber is low it would appear desirable carefully to examine financial results before further extensions are carried out.

In the Punjab woodfuel program has been made with the scheme for the formation of irrigated plantations for the supply of fuel to the Canal Provinces. These plantations which complete will cover 40,000 acres.

In Burma satisfactory progress has been made in the extension of teak forests plantations. Doubts have been expressed as to the wisdom of extending these plantations on the ground that the staff and labour resources for their upkeep is insufficient, but although it may be admitted that plantations which need constant attention are of little value, the fact remains that these plantations have been established that teak can be successfully grown in this way. As the demand for teak is constantly in excess of the supply, every effort should be made to increase the output of Shorea and Albizia timber, and the extension of teak plantations in Burma should therefore be continued. Many of the difficulties of natural use experienced are due to the fact that most plantations are situated on waste lands and the natural system which has been followed in the Northern plantations in South Malabar shows what can be done when a well considered scheme is carried out.

11. Under the general declaration of policy made by the Government of India in 1894, the forests of India were broadly divided into (a) Forests for the preservation of which is essential an economic or physical grounds, (b) Forests which afford a supply of valuable

General scheme for management purposes, (c) Minor forests and (d) Pasture lands. The system of management depends upon the objects to be met and necessarily varies with the class of the forest, so that while in classes (a), (b) and (c) simple rules are necessary to implement, special treatment in scientific and economic lines is necessary in forests of the second class. The management of such forests requires carefully prepared working plans and as without such plans systematic management is impossible, their preparation becomes a matter of vital importance.

The progress made in the preparation of working plans during the past 25 years is shown in the following statement:—

Working plans	1. Progress made in the preparation of working plans during the 25 years is shown in the following summary:					Progress during the 25 years.
	Period ending 31st Dec.
					* Area under working plans at end of last year of period, sq. mls.

The progress made in the preparation of new working plans during the past few years is disappointing. It is true that existing plans have also to some extent been revised but the amount of revision work carried out does not account for the short returns. Nor is it the case that plans have been completed for the greater portion of the area for which they are required, more at the end of the year 1910-11 plans had only been prepared for 25,125 square miles out of 45,516 square miles for which they were required. Leaving out of account revision work, it may be said that in the United Provinces, Punjab and Bihar and Orissa plans have been prepared for the greater part of the forests for which they are required; this work is well advanced in the Central Provinces; less advanced in Bengal and Bombay; and backward in Burma, Assam and Madras. In the latter provinces, maps of the forests are not in all cases available, but the main cause of the present state of affairs is the inadequacy of the trained staff and unless the staff is strengthened this difficulty will become more acute with the development of forest operations and the necessity for more intensive working, with the constant demand for revision of existing working plans and, in portions in which new forests are being formed, with the increased demand for new plans. Apart from this, many of the areas which at present do not require plans will, as communications improve and new demands spring up, have to be brought under scientific management.

The Government of India desire to impress on Local Governments and Administrations the great importance of working plans with as little delay as possible for all areas for which they are required and they trust that in the next few years more substantial progress will be made. They recognize that without an adequate staff this cannot be done, but in recent years millions of provincial taxes provision has been made for special working plans officers and the necessity for this should not be overlooked when additions to the staff are considered.

12. The following statement shows the areas and percentages under various methods of treatment in progress other than Bombay and Madras:—

Methods of treatment.	Area in square miles		Percentage of total area under each method of treatment.
	1890-94	1910-11	1890-94	1910-11
System of clear felling by compartments	5	14	0.04	0.06

On a system	1	14	0.01	0.06

Total	25,125	35,119	100.00	100.00

There has been no marked increase in the area under high forest systems involving concentrated felling. It is worth noting in respect of the production of timber that the present methods of treatment known in India as selection and improvement felling, in which somewhat less accurate measurements are taken than in the selection method, are the only systems of management based on the scientific requirements of the forest and regeneration of the forest system. This tendency is most marked in the United Provinces and the Punjab, where several working plans or improved lines are now under preparation. In Burma a system of working the high forests by regeneration measures concentrated on a definite area was discussed at a Conference held in 1910, but so far little appears to have been done to give effect to the recommendations that in certain areas these improved methods should replace the method of selection felling.

The substitution of improved systems of management for the traditional methods which have hitherto been followed is of great importance. The Government of India recognize that this can only

(a) Includes forests for which working plans have been prepared but which remain under any primitive system of working.

(b) Includes 1 square mile of reserve in Bengal which are not under the control of the Forest Department.

(c) Includes 1 square mile which is administered by the Mysore Forest, Central Provinces.

probably be brought about and that in many localities professional methods must be employed for better results to come, but as experience is gained of the special requirements of the species and of the best methods of treatment, more advanced systems of management will, it is hoped, be adopted.

13. The seasonal working of the Furze must depend largely upon the extent to which facilities for entrance to the forest are provided and a satisfactory feature of forest administration during the winter for many has been the substantial amount spent upon this object. Numerous forest roads have been constructed, the use of fireways and firebreaks has been extended and a great deal done in the erection of the scaffolding for the collection of staff and mill-bushes for impregnating officers. On these objects some 500 lakhs of rupees have been expended during the past year, compared with about 25 lakhs during the five years ending 1929. The use of mechanical transport in the extraction of forest produce is becoming more important each year and this question was considered by the Board of Forestry in 1931. The conditions which obtain under Indian conditions necessitate and justify the use of such transport, but the use of such transport must be on a large scale and the expenditure should be made with any other means of mechanical transport. It is likely that the use of such transport will be in the future, in the Ganges Valley of India, in the Chakras, in the United Provinces, in the United States of America, and in other countries. In the United Provinces, the use of such transport has been found to be of great value for the construction of a forest tramway in the Bannu and Ludhiana Districts of the United Provinces is now being considered. In Burma, studies are being made with a view to introducing the use of such transport from the forest to the mill. Another important work of this class in that province is the Weyg, which is a dam to catch the water of the stream in a high flood, the logs being then conveyed in the railway by the help of skids, gaskets, winches and short lengths of tramline. The forest has been found to be of great value, and although on the whole it has worked well, many difficulties have been experienced and it is doubtful whether it will be permanently maintained in its present form.

To provide the necessary expert advice, Taser Engineer was appointed in 1915 for two years, and he has been suggested on various projects in the United Provinces, the Aden and Berber. But with the inevitable extension in the number of applications for extension and increase in Engineer for the whole of India will be longhand and there are little doubt that in course of time the whole process will require amendment. Enclosures of their own

16. The question of the agency by which loan guarantees should be extended has given rise to considerable discussion in the past and although certain general principles may be held down, the form of agency most suitable to any particular provision or area must necessarily depend upon local conditions.

Having regard to these general principles, which in their opinion should govern the decision as to the form of agency to be employed, the Government of India are desirous to believe that in some parts of India departmental agency might perhaps be profitably employed more extensively than at present.

15. In recent years there has been a substantial increase in the demand for forest products and several industries dependent on their supply have been or are about to be started.

The most important feature in the utilization of bamboo, however, remains and stressed for the manufacture of paper-pulp, and to assist the development of this industry a special export has been employed. With the assistance of the Tigris Paper Mills Company, London, trials in the manufacture of bamboo pulp have been carried out successfully on a small scale, and recently the first attractive trial was made at the Tigris Paper Mills in England.

The outbreak of war has delayed the commencement of manufacture but as large quantities of raw material are available the outlook is distinctly promising. In the Punjab a considerable area for the cultivation of grasses and other fibre crops has been reserved for the manufacture of wood pulp has been granted. Matters are less advanced as regards the grass pulp industry, but this is being seriously considered. In the United Provinces and Assam numerous quantities of suitable materials are available and trials on a commercial scale are recommended. In certain instances, such as sisal-hemp,

The extraction of tungsten materials has played an important part in the development of the country. The extraction of tungsten materials has played an important part in the development of the country. The extraction of tungsten materials has played an important part in the development of the country.

During recent years much has been done to stimulate the local manufacture of matches, trials with numerous Indian woods have been carried out and a report regarding their suitability and the prospects of the industry has been tested. Several watch factories on modern lines have been established, and a sufficient supply of watch woods of good quality can be sourced, there is no reason why the industry should not grow rapidly. The regular and cheap supply of suitable wood is, however, a real difficulty, and the establishment of special plantations is a matter deserving the attention of Local Government.

The timber industry has attracted special attention at Assam, where it occupies a considerable portion of the eastern of the forests, and has recently grown, especially in the Assam Valley. The Local Administration has fostered the industry by evolution of Agency on the one hand, by devising measures for the protection of forests and for tea-plantations, and by forming experimental plantations of itself.

Large quantities of sleepers have always been obtained by the Indian railways from the forests in this country, but as the supply of first class sleeper woods such as sal and deodar is limited, experiments in the selection of less durable timbers have been in progress for some years past. The Indian forests contain many timbers which, as for structural qualities are superior, and at least the equal of imported sleeper woods, and these, if treated suitably, should go far to meet the demands of the Indian railways. The best and most economical method of treatment has not yet been determined but experiments are being carried out. Arrangements, however, have already been made with the Railway Board for the delivery of a large number of treated sal pine sleepers from the forests of the United Provinces while a similar supply of Saljan sleepers from the Andamans is under consideration.

Another important forest industry is which, under departmental management and, another progress has been made in the manufacture of paper and turpentine from waste woods obtained by tapping pine trees in the Himalayan forests. In the Punjab and the United Provinces new distilleries have been erected and in 1913-14 these turned out 57,409 m.c. of resin and 55,800 gallons of turpentine compared with 4,538 m.c. of resin and 51,601 gallons of turpentine the year before. The Indian demand for these products, which are largely used in the manufacture of paper, matches and varnishes, is considerable and the local industry has already attracted imports from other countries. In the Punjab a millinery plant has been erected near Lahore and a large business in the culture of silk is expected in the United Provinces. It is not too much to expect that a considerable portion of the Indian demand for resin and turpentine will now be met by the Department.

With a view of the improved methods of valuations now adopted and of the new industries which have been started (and which will be started) the officers of the department are fully alive to the importance of the commercial development of the forests and that they now recognize that efforts to secure commercial success are so much a part of their duties as the scientific management of the forest property entrusted to them.

24. In view of timber or fodder supply great operations have an important part of the work of the Forest Department, especially in Bombay, the Central Provinces, the United Provinces and Madras. In the past few years very large quantities of grass have been cut from the forests of the two first named provinces in the Deccan districts of Bombay, and in 1913-14 forests in Gujarat were supplied with grass from the United Provinces. In the month of 1913-14 the serious shortage of fodder in the affected areas of the United Provinces was made good from the local forests and from the Central Provinces.

25. The following statement shows the growth of forest revenue and expenditure during the past 20 years, the figures in all cases being the annual averages of the quinquennial periods. Further details will be found in the statements* appended to this review.

Financial results of Forest Administration in British India from 1894-95 to 1913-14.

Quinquennial period.	Gross revenue (average per annum).	Expenditure (average per annum).	Surplus (average per annum).	Percentage of surplus to gross revenue.
[In lakhs of rupees.]
1894-95 to 1899-00	27.4	33.8	16.6	59.6
1900-01 to 1904-05	28.2	39.1	17.8	63.2
1905-06 to 1909-10	35.8	48.9	20.8	57.9
1910-11 to 1914-15	66.3	66.1	32.1	48.4
1915-16 to 1919-20	126.5	74.3	49.6	39.3
1920-21 to 1924-25	250.7	66.4	72.8	29.0
1925-26 to 1929-30	377.2	63.8	79.2	20.9
1930-31 to 1934-35	510.9	107.7	100.0	19.6
1935-36 to 1939-40	520.7	107.7	100.0	19.6

Progress has been conspicuous and it is a striking fact that within fifty years the surplus has increased nearly tenfold. Even allowing for the rise in the prices of forest produce this is highly satisfactory, and it is to be remembered not only that the substantial portion of the annual expenditure is absorbed by the cost of research and of administrative work for which no immediate return can be expected, but also that all capital expenditure is met from revenue. Thus, in fact, the forest has not only large quantities of forest produce are given but are removed by right holders. The average cost of the produce so removed is one shilling and six pence per ton. But this is a rough estimate only and does not represent the amount which would have been realized had the produce been sold.

Both in 1912-13 and 1913-14 the surplus was over a million pounds sterling, and it may be anticipated with some confidence that as the year from this figure will be reached. With the steady protection of past years the value of the forest property has increased, with the introduction of new methods and the adoption of mechanical means of transport extraction is being extended and deepened; new and profitable industries are springing up, and with the adoption of more economical systems of management an increased return will be obtained.

* Not published in the Gazette.

Prior to the 1st April 1911 forest revenue and expenditure in the major provinces were shared equally between Imperial and Provincial, but in the minor provinces were wholly Imperial. In consequence of the recommendation made by the Royal Commission upon Decentralisation, the terms of particular settlements were altered with effect from the 1st April 1911, and revenue and expenditure were in the major provinces wholly provincialised. In the Minor Provinces, however, forest revenue is Provincial while the expenditure is half Imperial and half Provincial. In the other minor provinces (Guzrat, Ajmer, Baluchistan and the Andamans) both revenue and expenditure are Imperial.

18. The Forest Research Institute at Dehra Dun was established in 1906, but for several years its work was hampered by want of accommodation. The new buildings were completed in 1914 at a cost of over two and a quarter lakhs of rupees and consist of a main block containing museum and offices and a number of subsidiary buildings, study laboratories.

The Institute, which is under the administrative control of the Inspector-General of Forests, is in charge of the President, Mr. J. H. Mearns, F.R.S., and contains five main sections with in charge of a research officer, the branches of work being apiculture, forest biology, economic products, zoology and chemistry.

19. The work of the Silvicultural comprises a study of the requirements of the more important trees, the collection of statistics relating to the rate of growth of trees and the volume production of typical crops, as well as investigations regarding improved systems of management. The SV (Silviculture) and the SV (Forest Biology) are the principal sections which have been studied, and a monograph on the latter is now in the Press, while the question of afforestation is being studied in most of the important all forms of India. In addition the Silvicultural is connected with local affairs in the preparation of working plans or improved trees and has secured many other investigations. Among the subjects dealt with may be mentioned the experiments to ascertain the best rotation on which to work in India, the selection of seedlings in the country, the production of the SV (Forest Biology), the growth and effects of the drought of 1911 and 1912 in the all forms of the United Provinces and the results of continued fire protection in the management of afforestation in the Forests of the District. Statistical work, which in connection with silviculture has an important bearing on the future management of the forests in the best advantage, was taken up systematically in 1911-12. The results cannot be fully apparent for some time to come, but the value of the work is being realised in India, and in several provinces the need for special officers has been felt. In Burma one such officer is already employed on the work, in the United Provinces a post of Silviculturalist has been mentioned, and in Assam and Bihar and Orissa a similar proposal is under consideration.

A large part has been made in the formation of a zoological museum worthy of the Research Institute. The zoological branch of the Research Institute is in charge of the SV (Forest Biology), and investigations in the collection have been made during the past few years.

20. The work of the Forest Research Institute, apiculture biology, the study of forest grasses, the ecology of important species and the diseases of trees. Under the head of apiculture biology the work done has included the special study of important grasses, the identification of specimens for forest officers, the measures taken for the preparation of descriptive lists and local flora and the upkeep of the Dehra Dun herbarium. Complete descriptive lists are desirable, but for the present simple descriptive lists which will enable forest officers to identify trees and shrubs and by minute botanical features but by easily recognised field characters are all that is necessary. A scheme for their preparation on three lines was approved by the Board of Forestry in 1912 and the work is in progress in most provinces.

The herbarium has grown considerably, partly by the accession of the valuable Schimper collection in 1908 and partly by the accumulation of new specimens. In the economic section work is made of two new species (Adiantum latissimum and Sparganium laeve) which have been discovered and named after two officers of the Department. Special attention has been paid to forest grasses, as it is desirable not only to increase the commercial exploitation of the valuable kinds but also to afford the numerous and less valuable grasses. It has been shown that these widely distributed species can be utilised by the manufacture of paper pulp.

In zoological work attention has been mainly devoted to the study of the SV (Forest Biology), with special reference to the dying back of seedlings, while in connection with diseases the most important work of the Institute has been the study of the diseases of forest trees caused by the fungus Truncaria Pod.

21. The activities of the Forest Economist have covered a very wide field. An enquiry into the economic position, prospects and uses of all forms has been completed with the exception of the various kinds of high trees of strength. The economic treatment of Indian timber is being investigated and in connection with the utilization of resources for the manufacture of paper pulp, to which reference has already been made, a report on the supplies available and on local conditions has been issued.

The utilization of Indian timbers for industrial purposes has received attention and the suitability of woods for such purposes as matches, pulp, paper, boxes, packing boxes, railway wagon, etc., has been studied. Among other products, inquiries are a record and in connection with tea, banana, guava, rubber, clove, etc., all kinds of gums and resins.

The research of forest economic products which was started in 1906 by Mr. Herbert Blandy, has been steadily enlarged and is now housed in the new Institute at Dehra Dun.

22. During the past five years the post of Forest Zoologist has been held by two officers, and work has in consequence suffered, but recently progress has been good. The SV (Forest Biology) and the SV (Forest Zoology) have been investigated, over 250 life histories having been studied in connection with three main lines.

A study of the bark beetles, Boreus, Curculionidae, Waga, was commenced in Burma, and other insects have also been described, some of which are likely to prove of importance. A general study of the life history and of the parasites of Boreus has been in progress, and a revision of the life history of Boreus has been shortly published by Dr. Mearns. The zoological collection has rapidly increased, and over four thousand species have been added during the past few years.

20. The Chemical Analysis works in close touch with other research works, especially with the Forest Research. Among the chief investigations taken up may be mentioned the determination of tannin values in barks and other products, the distillation of oil from all sources, from pine needles as well as from forest waste, the extraction of soluble products from the green parts of forest trees and the improvement and standardisation of Indian turpentine and resin.

21. Forest Diseases. 24. A list of publications issued by the Forest Research Institute during the period 1912-13 to 1913-14 is given in appended statement XX.*

25. An enquiry into the effect of forests on the retention of atmospheric and soil moisture has been carried out. A large mass of evidence was collected, and the conclusions arrived at, briefly summarised, were as follows:—So far as India is concerned, sufficient data are not available to enable any definite opinion to be formed regarding the influence of forests on the soil moisture, but the denudation of the soil resulting from the destruction of forest vegetation may be looked on as an established fact.

As regards the effect of forest preservation on the run-off of rain water and the underground water supply, sufficient evidence is not forthcoming to justify any change in the principles on which the forest policy of Government has hitherto been based. At the same time useful results might be obtained if entomological stations were established where local differences in the rainfall, temperature and humidity lands and arable forest areas would be recorded. It is also important that adequate measures, where necessary, should be taken to prevent the destruction of forests in areas liable to denudation.

L. DAVIDSON,
Secretary to Government.

They will be made by pupils belonging to the following classes of the Muhammadan community of this Presidency—Mingulath, Tattara, Dandakhal and Jannam. They will be of the same value as the scholarships which are now awarded under the Government Scholarship Scheme, 1913-14, to pupils in secondary schools (viz. Rs. 2 per session in forms I to III and Rs. 3 per session in forms IV to VI) and will be held under similar conditions. Of these eight scholarships, three will be placed at the disposal of the Inspectors of the VIII Circle, and one at the disposal of each of the Inspectors of the III, V, VI, VII and IX Circles for award to their division, subject to the conditions laid down in the Government Scholarship Notification of 1913-14, dated 26th June 1915, and published in the Fort St. George Gazette, dated 26th July 1915. During the current year scholarships may be awarded—one in each of the VIII Circle, provided suitable candidates apply for them, and if awarded they may be renewed from year to year until a permanent has finished his school course. In subsequent years they will be awarded only in the first term.

3. In addition to the above, four special collegiate scholarships payable by all classes of Muhammadans commencing from the Junior Intermediate class and continuing throughout the whole of the Intermediate and B.A. course will be awarded every year in colleges. The value of each of these scholarships will be Rs. 9 per session in the Intermediate classes and Rs. 14 per session in the B.A. classes.

NOTICE.

APPLICATIONS ARE INVITED from candidates for admission to the Provincial Forest Service. intending candidates should specify in their applications their age, nationality and educational qualifications and send them with copies of testimonials to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue (Land Revenue), Madras. All applications must reach the Secretary before the 28th August 1913. Attached is an extract of section 26 of the Forest Code containing the rules regarding the recruitment of the Provincial Forest Service.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Extract of Section 26, Forest Code

1. The Madras Provincial Forest Service will be recruited—

(a) from men who have successfully passed through the Provincial Service exams at the Research Institute, Dehra Dun,
(b) by promotion of deserving Bungalos.

2. On or before the 31st June of every year, the Board of Revenue will submit to Government a report as to the number of candidates for the Provincial Forest Service to be selected during the year. On receipt of information from the President of the Forest Research Institute, Dehra Dun, of the number of studentship allotted to this Presidency, the Board will publish the rules for the recruitment of the Provincial Forest Service in the Madras Gazette and the District Gazette in the form of a notification inviting applications for appointments in that service. A Committee consisting of the Forest Commissioner, another Member of the Board of Revenue and the Commissioner of Forests, Central Division, will meet early in September for the selection of suitable candidates for the special course of training at Dehra Dun. The selection will be confined mainly to young men who are of good physique and sound standing and qualified by previous education; preference will be given to those candidates who have a substantial knowledge of one or more branches of natural science, but a knowledge of English and mathematics will also be required in order to ensure that those selected shall be thoroughly capable of following and profiting by the course of instruction. The selection Committee will submit to Government by the 15th September the names of the candidates whom they recommended in order of merit. For every vacancy not less than two names shall be submitted. The Government will then select a number of candidates slightly in excess of the number of vacancies so as to form a reserve against failures to pass the entrance examination.

3. Candidates should be prepared to satisfy the Committee in such manner as may be prescribed by the Committee that they possess the requisite physical and educational qualifications to undergo successfully the tests prescribed in rule 5 a/c.

4. Except the special course and with the special sanction of the Local Government, no student will be deemed for the special course who is not between the ages of 18 and 25 on the 1st July of the year in which the special course begins. Candidates must therefore be between the ages of 17 and 24 on the 1st July of the year in which they are selected.

5. The candidates selected by Government will undergo the following examination which will be conducted by the Board of Revenue at Dehra Dun in October:—

(a) Physical test.—To be prescribed by the Board. It will probably take the form of a walk of from 12 to 18 miles within a given time. This will be followed by a medical examination.

(b) Educational test.—English.—The candidate will be required to write a full paper of two passages—one and sent by a European, and the other by an Indian student; this will be followed by a Indian and European translation.

Mathematics.—The examination will consist of two papers—one in arithmetic and algebra, and the other in geometry and trigonometry, for each of which three hours will be allowed. The standard in mathematics is a practical knowledge of arithmetic, algebra up to and including quadratic equations and simple problems, construction geometry (including the first three books of Euclid) and elementary trigonometry including the solution of triangles and the use of logarithms. No candidate who fails to obtain half the full marks in each paper will be considered to have passed. The question papers will be sent to him by the Board of Revenue for valuation.

The Board will report to Government the result of the physical test and the examination in English. The President, Forest Research Institute, will communicate to Government before the 15th December the results of the examination in mathematics. On receipt of both these results the Government will announce the names of the candidates finally selected.

It will be open to the President of the Forest Research Institute to receive any student from the college, if, at any time during the course at Dehra Dun, he is found to be physically weak, or if after having been at the college for two months he is found by the President not to possess sufficient knowledge of English to enable him to follow the course intelligently.

9. Selected candidates will, before departure, be required to undergo practical training for a period of six months under a District Forest Officer and will be paid during the period a stipend of Rs. 25 with food allowance of Rs. 35 per mensem. They will be required to show up at Rs. 40 from the date on which their training under the District Forest Officer ceases, up to the date on which they are formally admitted as students in the Dehra Dun College. Candidates are liable to rejection if the results of their practical training are such as to indicate that they are unlikely to prove good forest officers.

7. Before proceeding to Dehra candidates will be required to execute a formal agreement and a security bond with two sureties for Rs. 4,000 that they will serve the department for at least five years after their return from Dehra. The sureties should be persons residing or owning property in British India.

8. Selected candidates, while under training at Dehra Dun, will be granted a stipend of Rs. 35 per mensem in addition to actual expenses for journey by rail or steamer. They will, on returning to Madras fully qualified, be given a bonus of Rs. 400 to help them to purchase the equipment necessary for their work. Candidates will be paid the usual travelling allowances enroute under the Civil Service Regulations for paying the mileage at Dehra and for their return on successful completion of the two years' course.

9. Candidates who have obtained the necessary certificates from the Forest Institute, Dehra Dun, will be posted by the Forest Service as Probationary Forest Assistant Conservators, but they may not be substantially appointed to the Forest Service until they have served as probationers for two years and until certain conditions in that service arise, their pay during the period of probation shall not exceed Rs. 100 per mensem and if their probationary period is extended their pay during the first year of extension shall not exceed Rs. 150 per mensem and Rs. 200 per mensem during the remaining period of extension. During this probationary period all probationers except those who speak one of the vernaculars of the Presidency or their mother tongue must pass the test prescribed in section 65 in one of the vernaculars of the Presidency.

10. Any candidate who is not appointed permanently to Government service before attaining the age of 35 may be allowed to come on service (without pension) any period of training or probation after attaining that age.

11. Reasons of long service and approved work are eligible for promotion to the Provisional Service without any further training. When so promoted, they will be appointed first class on probation and confirmed if found suitable.

12. An officer appointed direct to the Provisional Forest Service as Ranger or Forester promoted to the service will, on permanent appointment, be designated Extra Assistant Conservator and receive pay at Rs. 250 per mensem rising by an annual increment of Rs. 25 to Rs. 350. Their subsequent promotion to the grade of Extra Deputy Conservator will be regulated by the provisions of section 51.

Board of Revenue (Land Revenue—Forest),
Madras, 10th July 1910.

Secretary.

The Standard Barometer and Thermometers are read at 8 A. M., 10 A. M., 4 P. M., and 8 P. M., and the daily means are obtained by the application of Bentley's correction, deduced from twenty years' observations. The color of the Barometer is twenty-two feet above the level of the sea, and the mercury of the Rain Gauge is two feet from the ground. The wind, temperature and general weather registered are for the nearest (and down- from) winds to midships.
